INDIANAPOLIS (Sept. 12, 2011) — Peyton Manning might be sidelined for the Sept. 18 Indianapolis Colts home opener, but Indy Express Bus will be on the active list, ready to take fans from the northside to downtown Indianapolis every home game day this season.

On Sept. 18, Indy Express Bus will pick up fans at 11 a.m. for the 1 p.m. game against the Cleveland Browns. Shuttles will leave from Meijer in Carmel (intersection of Pennsylvania and Carmel Drive) and in Fishers at Prairie View at Crosspoint (northeast corner of 106th Street and Lantern Road) – the same locations where Indy Express Bus offers downtown commuter shuttles weekdays.

“We are excited to offer this new shuttle service for the 2011-2012 Colts season,” said Ehren Bingaman, executive director of the Central Indiana Regional Transportation Authority (CIRTA), which operates Indy Express Bus along with Miller Trailways. “Not only does the Indy Express Bus help fans save money on parking and gas, it leaves the driving to someone else. Plus it helps alleviate traffic congestion downtown.”

Round trip tickets are $10 in advance and $20 at the pick-up locations. Pre-order tickets online at www.IndyExpressBus.com.

The Indy Express Bus Game Day Shuttle will drop off fans on Missouri Street on the west side of Lucas Oil Stadium between Abbott and West Norwood streets. It will depart from the same location 30 minutes after the game. Fans can bring snacks and drinks, as they're not left on the bus during the game.

The service will be offered for all eight home games this year, with pickup two hours before the kickoff and pickup 30 minutes afterward.
